

Fishing pole holders are an essential accessory for any angler, whether you're fishing on the riverbank or from a boat. A fishing pole holder frees up your hands, makes fishing easier and more enjoyable, and ensures that your fishing rod is secure and safe from damage. Here are three reasons why every angler needs a fishing pole holder in their fishing kit:

1. Keep Your Hands Free

When it comes to fishing, your hands are the most important tools you have. By using a fishing pole holder, you can keep your hands free to handle other tasks, such as casting, reeling in line, baiting the hook, and landing fish. This not only makes fishing easier but also more enjoyable, as you can sit back and relax while waiting for a fish to bite.

Additionally, having your hands free also allows you to multi-task. You can keep an eye on multiple lines or rig up a new lure or baitfish while still having a line in the water with a pole in the holder.

2. Protect Your Fishing Pole

When you're fishing, you're often moving around and changing locations. Carrying a fishing pole in your hand, by the reel or rod, can be tiring and can damage your fishing rod. A fishing pole holder keeps your fishing rod secure and prevents it from getting tangled in bushes, trees or other objects.

Failing to use a fishing pole holder can also result in heavy fishing rods being set down on the ground, leading to damage when they get stepped on or are exposed to dirt and grime. So, a pole holder can honestly save you time and money in the long run.

3. Increases your chances of catching fish

A fishing pole holder keeps your rod securely in place while you wait for that all-important bite. This allows you to keep your eyes on your line or other rods while you wait for a fish to bite or even relax with a snack or drink. Not only that, by having the ability to set up multiple lines with pole holders, it allows you to increase your chances of catching fish.

Having a rested arm and a steady hand due to the support of a holder often allows for quicker and more efficient hooksets on bites, and that can mean reeling in more catches. Plus, having a spare line, or multiple lines, in can attract more fish, so being able to set those up in a holder just makes it easier.

The Conclusion

In conclusion, every angler needs a fishing pole holder in their fishing kit. It keeps your hands free, protects your fishing pole, and increases your chances of catching fish. Don't let tangled rods and fatigue keep you from enjoying your day on the water.
